

Insider Exposure has always had the best interests including health and safety of all of our stakeholders at the forefront of our business model.

We have been monitoring the status of COVID-19 as it impacts our events for 2020 on a day by day, hour by hour basis. As we have all seen throughout the last six weeks we are in a state where things are constantly changing.

We are rooting for all people to defeat COVID-19 and return to life as we knew it before this pandemic. As states begin to reopen we look to our leaders in the health industry as well as the local and national governments to determine policy and provide guidance as we enter May and then into the summer months.

We will create policies that mirror local and national industry standards for each event, that fit the current environment. We've developed some basic protocol around our July events and will do everything we can to ensure the safety of all who attend our events. For more in-dept information about some of our basic policies please see our website.

If there is basketball in May, June, July and possibly in August and September you know there will be basketball with Insider Exposure in the safest and most customer friendly setting in the basketball industry.

Please allow us to take time to say we appreciate everyone who has supported us in the past and look forward to making it through the pandemic together in the near future.
